PROF. P. SOMASEKHARAN NAIR MEMORIAL LECTURE - 2023

Prof. P. Somasekharan Nair Memorial Lecture for the year 2023 was organized by ISDL on 20th October, 2023. Prof. K. Nachimuthu, French Institute of Indology, Puducherry was the main speaker. His lecture was on the topic "Grammatical Meaning in Lexical Semantics and Lexicons". Prof. Nachimuthu narrated the grammatical traditions of India drawing examples from Sanskrit, Early Tamil, Malayalam etc. The process of evolutions of words and their semantics were discussed by citing examples from early grammars like Pāṇinīyam, Tolkappiyam etc. According to Prof. K. Nachimuthu, both Lexical meaning and Grammatical meaning are important and the lexicographer should include them. The grammatical meaning as the manifestation of grammatical function is the core to identify the lemma and also helps to distinguish and disambiguate the linguistic constructions. The grammatical meaning becomes more important for performing POS tagging and other tasks rigorously. He discussed the phenomenon from a historical perspective. He also examined how this information is included and synthesized by the lexicographers in the lexicons' corpus indices and dictionaries. To sum up Prof. Nachimuthu elaborated the following points in his lecture : Lexical Meaning and Grammatical Meaning, Grammatical Meaning in Lexical Semantics, Grammatical Meaning defined in Traditional Grammars, Function words and their grammatical meaning as treated in Grammatical works, Lexicons and Corpus Dictionaries and Indices, Grammaticalization and Grammatical Meaning, Treatment of Grammatical Meaning in Lexicon, Problems and Solutions, The implications for AI oriented POS Tagging and Corpus Linguistics.

BRAHUI LECTURE SERIES

The second lecture on Brahui by Dr. Nazir Shakir Brahui, Director, Brahui Research Institute, Sindh, Pakistan was held at ISDL on 23rd of November 2023 on the topic 'Dravidian Names of Brahui Tribes, Areas/Regions and Cultural Objects'. The lecture started at 10.30 AM with a welcome address by Dr. N. Muraleedharan Nair (Treasurer, ISDL). Dr. Nazir Shakir Brahui has divided the lecture into three parts. In the first part, he discussed the Proto-Dravidian names of Brahui tribes, clans and castes. He spoke about the origin of the term Brahui, division of Brahui nation etc. In the second part, he discussed the Proto-Dravidian names of cities, mountains and rivers of Brahui areas. In the session he pointed out a good number of Brahui names which are of Dravidian origin and also the names which consist of Dravido-Persian words. In the third section, Dr. Nazir discussed the Proto-Dravidian names of things used in Brahui culture. He has also listed some examples of animals and birds found in the Brahui folk literature whose names are of Dravidian origin. Many researchers and senior linguists from different parts of India and also from foreign countries attended the seminar through online mode. The interactive and informative lecture came to an end with the vote of thanks proposed by Dr. Abdul Samed S.

PROF. CAROLINE'S LECTURE ON INDIAN ENGLISH

The International School of Dravidian Linguistics organised an Online Special Lecture on "Indian English: Accents and Attitudes" on 30th November, 2023. The lecture was delivered by Dr. Caroline Wiltshire, Associate Professor, Department of Linguistics, University of Florida, USA.

The lecture started at 10.30 AM with a welcome address by Dr. N. Muraleedharan Nair, Treasurer, ISDL. In this lecture Prof. Caroline Wiltshire discussed the linguistic situation in India. She explained the spectrographic representation of consonants and vowels of Indian English. She elaborated on the suprasegmental features of Indian English. She is of the view that Indian English tends to place stress on the basic syllable structures for lexical or grammatical distinction. Dr. Caroline Wiltshire pointed out that there exist various varieties within Indian English. They are Southern, Northern, North Eastern etc. Finally, she concluded that speakers in India are aware that Indian English differs from other Englishes of the world and Indian English has a place among world Englishes. After the interactive session, the lecture came to an end with the vote of thanks by Dr. Aiswaria G Shajan. Scholars from different parts of India and abroad attended the lecture and the feedback from the participants gave a very high rating.

BANGLA LANGUAGE COURSE FOR NATIVE BENGALI CHILDREN

The International School of Dravidian Linguistics has introduced a Bangla language course for native Bengali children residing in Kerala. It is an offline evening course conducted at Rabindra Bhavan, ISDL campus. A large number of migrant Bangla speakers are employed in various sectors in Kerala. Their children have no opportunity to learn their mother tongue in schools. This course is intended to enable them to read and write Bangla language. The course was started on 5th December 2023 and will continue for 3 months. Transport allowance is also arranged for the children. The response of the Bangla people is quite encouraging.

*Aiswaria G. Shajan45TH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF THE LINGUISTIC SOCIETY OF INDIA

The Department of Linguistics, Aligarh Muslim University in collaboration with CIIL, ICSSR and ICHR organized the 45th International Conference of the Linguistic Society of India from 20th - 22nd, November 2023 at Aligarh. The conference was inaugurated by Shri. Sanjay K. Murthy, the Union Education Secretary, Govt. of India through virtual mode. In his inaugural address he said that linguistics is not just an academic pursuit but a bridge that links cultures, a tool for social understanding and a beacon that illuminates the pathways to a more inclusive and harmonious world. Language is an integral and dynamic aspect of the human experience, influencing every walks of life from personal expression to social organization and cultural preservation. Its significance lies in its capacity to connect individuals, shape societies, and serve as a vehicle for the transmission of knowledge and understanding. He also emphasized the relevance of NEP 2020 in a multilingual country like India. In order to preserve the multilingual and multicultural society, it is necessary for children to get the opportunity to achieve multilingual proficiency from the school level onwards. It lays emphasis on the adoption of bilingual and trilingual formats for teaching and learning in the education system. It leads to the development of high quality bilingual textbooks and promote the study of classical languages. Prior to the inaugural address, Prof. M.J. Warsi, Director of the conference welcomed the delegates. He remarked that the rich linguistic heritage of India with its multitude of languages and dialects, serves as an ideal backdrop for this stimulating exchange of ideas. He said that India has an independent and original traditional language study with Panini's Ashtadhyayi as its peak, millions of years before the advent of modern linguistics.

Shri Ganga Kumar (IAS), Deputy Director General, Ministry of Chemicals & Fertilizers stressed the need to promote our languages in order to preserve our Indian culture. Mr. Mohammed Imran (IPS), the Registrar of AMU talked about the role of language in the thought process and about the emerging opportunities for linguists after the launch of NEP 2020. Prof. Shreesh Chaudhary (IIT Madras) stressed the role of Linguistics in ICT. Prof. Younasse Tarbouni (Washington University) talked about the rich linguistic and cultural diversity of India. Prof. G. Umamaheshwara Rao (President, LSI) highlighted the significance of NEP 2020, as this policy gave weightage to regional languages. Prof. Shobha Satyanath discussed about linguistic pluralism and Cultural diversity of India and its relevance. Prof. Arif Nazir, Dean, Faculty of Arts briefed the significance of local language. In the inaugural session three publications viz., Aligarh Journal of Linguistics, Book of Abstracts of ICOLSI-45, Modern Linguistics and Urdu Literature by Prof. M.J. Warsi were released. The inaugural session concluded with the presidential address by Prof. Mohammad Gulrez, the Vice-Chancellor, AMU. He highlighted the pivotal role of the Department of Linguistics in documenting two endangered languages - Birhor and Chinali.

The presentations by Prof. Kasia Jaszczolt on 'Tensed and Tenseless Languages and the Nature of Human Time' and the presentation by Prof. John Baugh, Washington University (President, Linguistic Society of America) on the historical facts which gave rise to other discriminatory behaviors, including Linguistic Profiling were very enlightening.

The conference was attended by eminent linguists like Profs. Umamaheshwara Rao, Umarani Pappuswamy, Vaishna Narang, R.C. Sharma, Sonal K. Joshi, Shobha Satyanath, Sunandan Kumar Sen, Shreesh Chaudhary, Suman Preet, Gautam K. Borah, L. Ramamoorthy, Prasannansu, Vijay Kumar Kaul, K.S.Mustafa, Pradeep Kumar Das, Aejaz Mohamadz Sheikh and Abhinav Kumar Mishra.

The conference was a grand success in bringing together intellectuals and young researchers from around the globe to discuss and disseminate linguistic knowledge and new ideas.

EGOCENTRIC QUESTIONS IN BANGLA AND HINDI-URDU

The International School of Dravidian Linguistics organized a special Lecture on "Egocentric Questions in Bangla and Hindi-Urdu" on 15 November 2023, through Google Meet. The lecture was delivered by Dr. Rajesh Bhatt, Professor of Linguistics, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, USA.

Dr. Bhatt analysed the role of expletives, that are semantically empty words like it, that of English and their role in syntactic theory with their relation between structural position and meaning. He explained in detail the expletives 'yea', 'koi' in Hindi-Urdu.

By egocentric the speaker has access to the question situation, proximity, clause-type etc. As part of his study, Prof. Rajesh Bhatt included egocentric questions in rhetorical and in the phone calls as samples.

The referent 'e' is also focussed in the analysis. Its location and semantics are also presented in detail. This Online lecture was attended by researchers from all over the world.
